MONARCHIST COUP IN GERMANY HAS EFFECT ON ALLIES

MORE SYMPATHY FOR REPUBLIC, RESULT OF MURDERS.

FEAR RADICALISM

Stand on Reparations May be Modified by Entente to Relieve Situation.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Copyright, 1922, by The Janesville Gazette.

Washington — Germany's internal troubles as reflected in the numerous attacks by agents of the former kaiser's party or statesmen and publicists of the republican regime will have a decided effect upon allied politics. This is already apparent in the sympathetic tendencies in official quarters here where European events are usually watched.

Until the assassination of Rathenau the question of reparations had been looked upon as largely an economic problem with a differing viewpoint among the allies as to the wisdom, from an economic viewpoint, of compelling Germany to pay sums which would throttle her growth. The danger now of maintaining an extreme viewpoint on reparations such as would squelch the republican element by weakening their opportunities to consolidate internal factions is not underestimated. In fact there are many here who believe that the monarchists are trying to take advantage of the desperate condition into which Germany has been driven and terrorize the German republic by old time tactics.

May Prove Boomerang

Constant political attacks on the Wirth cabinet for its willingness to reach an understanding with the allies on the fulfillment of treaty obligations have been slowly weakening the republican group. As usual with extreme reactionary parties, the monarchists have not been satisfied with political warfare but have begun a reign of "schrecklichkeit." Maximilian Harden, the latest victim of the murder band, has fearlessly exposed the plots of the monarchists and revealed the extent of their connection with the old regime which gave the world unrestricted submarine warfare. Mr. Harden is fortunately recovering from the wounds of the assassins, but the attack upon him as well as the assassination of Rathenau will prove a boomerang to the monarchists.

The general opinion here is that the allied and associated powers, who have been divided in their counsels as to the best policy to pursue toward Germany, will find necessity now for harmony and a unified front. There seems to be no question but that the stand of the United States and Great Britain who have been urging since the war a policy of moderation toward and tolerance of the infant republic while it struggled for self possession, will find more favor today with the other allies than ever before.

Mediation May Bring Peace in China Province

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Canton.—Hopes of peace in Canton and possible reconciliation of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, deposed president of the southern China government, with General Chen Chiung Ming, military power in the same district, are held out through mediation of Gen. Ngai Bong Ping, commander of the third division of the Cantonese army.

Sun insists on his restoration to the presidency, that the southern government may have an equal organization with the north in negotiations with Peking.

He asks also that Chen admit "Whatever he has done in connection with the capture of Canton was wrong and punish his high officers who started the attack." If Chen will do these things, Sun's message said, "I will pardon him. Otherwise I will endeavor to eliminate all opposition."

MYSTERY SEEN IN WHEREABOUTS OF EAMON DE VALERA

REPUBLICAN LEADER DISAPPEARS AFTER DUBLIN BATTLE.

BLOCKS IN ASHES

Rebel Garrison Surrenders in Face of Flames and Machine Gun Bullets.

BULLETIN.

Dublin.—A call to arms was issued Thursday by the provisional free state government, in the form of a proclamation opening the way for the enlistment of those citizens who last week were "declined by the government because it was confident of the ability of the army single-handed to meet and defeat any attack made upon it."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London.—Complete mystery surrounds the whereabouts of Eamon DeValera, the Irish republican leader, after the surrender of his besieged comrades in Dublin to the forces of the provisional free state government.

The rumors reaching here from Dublin are almost as varied as the number of correspondents sending them.

Cathal Brugha who, until the Easter rebellion, was an obscure drummer under the English name of Charles Burgess, but who has become a leader among opponents of the Anglo-Irish treaty, made a dramatic exit from the burning O'Connell street buildings.

While his garrison went forward under a white flag to surrender, Brugha dashed, revolver in hand, from one of the barracks in Findaters Lane, intending to fight his way through to liberty. The nationals, however, turned on a machine gun and took him prisoner, wounded. According to one version, his condition is serious.

Early Thursday the flames were still rising from some of the buildings in O'Connell street.

Fight to Save Cathedral.

The fire brigades were confining their efforts to the office of the Dublin Tramway company on O'Connell street, where flames were spurting, causing anxiety for the safety of the pro-cathedral, a short distance east of the tramway building. Fires on the opposite side of O'Connell street were thought to be under control although a strong wind added to the difficulties of the firemen.

The fate of the garrisons of the burned buildings, apart from those who surrendered and a certain number known to have escaped, was unknown at an early hour.

P. O. BUILDINGS ARE MASS OF SMOKING RUINS

Dublin. — Twenty buildings in O'Connell street, Dublin's main thoroughfare, were destroyed by fire after the surrender of insurgent republicans who had been turned the building into fortresses in their resistance to the provisional free state government.

The fires, which raged through the night, were not completely under control Thursday. Only smouldering ruins remained where the insurgents made their last stand. It is believed the damage will reach several hundred thousands of pounds. Four snipers were killed during the night.

Robert C. Barton, former minister of economics in the Dail cabinet, was arrested at the home of Erskine Childers.

The account of the final surrender of the insurgents, issued by the National army headquarters said:

"At 7:30 p. m., a party of men, led by Art O'Connor, left the Granville hotel under a white flag and surrendered to Lieut. Craney.

"One of the party said they were given orders to surrender by Cathal Brugha. Mr. Brugha, brandishing a revolver, then dashed out. When he came under the fire of the troops he was wounded and removed to a hospital.

PHONE COMPANIES CLAIM CONTRACTS

Rural Lines Contend Bell Company Would Disregard Agreement.

A public hearing on the application of the Wisconsin Telephone company to raise switching rates at the Janesville exchange as charged the Rock County Farmers' Telephone company and the Leyden Telephone company was held Thursday morning before L. F. Gettle of the Wisconsin railroad commission, at the city hall here.

R. L. Valentine, president of the Rock County Farmers' Telephone company was represented by J. M. Whitehead and A. E. Matheson.

The Wisconsin Telephone company was represented by J. F. Krizek, general counsel of the company; F. M. McEnery, general commercial superintendent and W. N. Nash, local manager. C. F. O'Neil and William Pratt appeared for the Leyden company.

At the hearing the Wisconsin Telephone company asked permission to raise the switching rates from $3 to $12 a year, disregarding a contract made with Rock County Farmers' Telephone company before the latter was purchased by the Bell people. Attorneys Matheson and Whitehead contended that the contract could not be disregarded until its termination. The case was taken under advisement by Commissioner Gettle.

APE THE APE TO OBTAIN POISE, IS DOCTOR'S ADVICE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Los Angeles—Aping the ape in back to nature exercises, to limber up and obtain poise and equilibrium, was suggested before the National Osteopathic convention here by Dr. C. J. Gaddis, Oakland, as an urgent necessity for people nowadays.

Particularly, he told osteopaths, the head should be swung more than the body for several seconds each day.

The free forms of dancing, including barefoot and handspring, are vitality builders in affording the double value of having fun and zest in the free open spaces, he said.

MORGAN LAUNCHES SMASHING ATTACK UPON EXTREMISTS

REACTIONARIES AND RADICALS CALLED PUBLIC FOES.

OPENS CAMPAIGN

Candidate Given Glad Welcome at Eau Claire; War Vets Parade.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Eau Claire.—A progressive republican who does not believe in exceeding the speed limit, was William J. Morgan's characterization of himself Wednesday night, opening his campaign for governor here before a big, enthusiastic crowd.

"Fighting Bill" was given a real welcome. The 32nd division band led a parade, and a large crowd, including many workingmen and former soldiers, turned out for the keynote meeting at the armory, under the auspices of the Eau Claire women's Morgan for Governor club.

A campaign in seventeen counties is planned for the next ten days.

Wednesday night's crowd represented a blending of republican factions in the fight against radicalism. Morgan was introduced by George Ingalls, county agricultural agent. On the stage were Assemblyman Rush Bullis, Perry Atkinson, Capt. George J. Nash, S. C. Moon, the Rev. F. E. Wilson, overseas chaplain; Mrs. R. W. Bowen, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Shoemaker

Wallops Radicalism

In a smashing attack on state radicalism, Morgan pictured Governor Blaine as one who has put on the halter of Townleyism He placed radicals and reactionaries in the same boat—both enemies of true progress.

"We believe campaign promises are made to be kept," he declared, "and the statement of principles for which we stand constitutes our contract with the people. Nothing is promised that can not be performed and we believe nothing has been advocated that a reasonable legislature will not agree to.

"We have pledged ourselves to uphold the constitution of Wisconsin and all its amendments, the constitution of the United States and all its amendments," said Morgan. "The eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States prohibits the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes. The highest courts have declared beer and wine intoxicating.

"Promises of beer and wine or any other intoxicating beverage are fraudulent efforts to catch votes, because the courts would be obliged to declare a law authorizing the sale of such beverages unconstitutional and void so long as the eighteenth

Passengers Fight for Life 75 Feet Beneath Streets

New York.—About 150 persons were overcome by smoke Thursday when a north bound Jerome avenue express, on the East Side subway, caught fire. Dozens of ambulances were summoned from nearly every hospital in the city and Mayor Hylan arrived to direct the rescue work. The accident occurred about 75 feet under ground.

The fire started in the motorman's box after a fuse had blown out. There was a flash of flame and the smoke swept through the crowded train.

When the emergency brakes were applied and the train came to a grinding halt, guards threw open the doors and passengers made a mad scramble to escape. Those unable to walk were carried from the cars. Fire ladders were dropped through iron gratings and unconscious women were lifted to the street.

Stretched on Sidewalks

The injured were stretched out on the sidewalks for several blocks and 14 pulmotors were put in operation.

Men, women and children filled the 10-car train. Guards attempted to fight the flames with hand extinguishers, but failed. When firemen arrived, however, they soon succeeded in killing the blaze which was small. Many fire fighters were overcome.

Relief work soon got under way. Doctors hastened to the scene in ambulances and other physicians jumped into taxicabs, bringing office nurses with them.

Bloomingdale's department store, 59th and Lexington avenue, organized a fire brigade of 75 employes to aid in the rescue work.

Don Gas Masks

Members of the rescue squad donned gas masks to attack the flames.

Mayor Hylan, one of the first city officials to arrive, was driven back by fumes. He directed that experts be summoned from the fire department, and the department of water supply, gas and electricity make a thorough investigation.

Patrolman Frederick Norman took charge of the train when it halted. He commanded the passengers to remain quiet. Then he directed the guards to open the door and began dragging half conscious men and women from the train.

Then he too collapsed and had to be lifted to the street.

TWO ROCK CASES IN SUPREME COURT

Suits of Highway Trailer Firm and Paving Company Are Appealed.

Two Rock county cases were filed with the Wisconsin supreme court, the papers being sent forward Thursday by Clerk Jesse Earle.

An appeal has been taken on the $250,000 suit filed by the Highway Trailer company of Edgerton against the Janesville Electric company. Judge George Grimm following a hearing here sustained a demurrer filed by the defendant corporation alleging the plaintiff company did not state sufficient grounds for a court case.

The issue involved in this litigation is over alleged responsibility of the Janesville Electric company for turning off power during the disastrous fire which destroyed one unit of the trailer company.

An appeal was also taken in the suit of the White Construction company against the city of Beloit. Damages are being sought by the plaintiff corporation for delays on a paving contract. In this case the court over-ruled a demurrer filed by the defendant city.

CHLOROFORM SEIZED BY DEPUTY MARSHAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee—Chloroform which, according to David A. Sondel, assistant U. S. district attorney, was part of a surplus army supply of chloroform condemned recently, was seized Thursday by Roy Charmock, deputy U. S. marshal, at the warehouse of two Wisconsin wholesale drug concerns. The concerns were the Roemer Drug company, Milwaukee, and The Hurd Drug company, Kenosha.

The chloroform was shipped from New York, March 2. It apparently had been bought at a sale of surplus army supplies.

The libel on which the chloroform was seized charged that the pure food and drug act had been violated by the shipment across a state line of an adulterated drug.

FEEL SETTLEMENT NOT FAR DISTANT IN RAIL WALKOUT

MARKED TREND TOWARDS PEACE SEEN IN LAST DAY.

JEWELL REPLIES

Exchange of Letters May Open Way for Negotiations With Board.

BULLETIN.

Chicago.—The 14,000 union signal men in this country will not be called out on strike for the time being at least, D. W. Helt, president of their union, announced Thursday in calling a meeting of his executive committee here Saturday to decide what permanent action the signal men will take.

BULLETIN.

Columbus, O.—Clerks and freight handlers of the Norfolk and Western railroad who went on strike here yesterday, have requested that that company take them back, officials announced this afternoon.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago.—The strike of railway shopmen assumed a more conciliatory aspect today—the sixth day the nationwide walkout, and feeling became more general in rail circles that the last twenty four hours had shown a marked trend toward peace, despite increased disorders at scattered points.

It was believed Wednesday's exchange of letters between Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States railroad labor board, and E. M. Jewell, head of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, probably opened the way to negotiations for an early settlement of the controversy. Jewell's statement that the shop crafts "are willing to confer with anybody authorized to bring peace proposals" was accepted as a promising indication of a speedy return to normal conditions in the railroad shops.

Summons Too Late

The statement was made in the face of the repeated contention by the railroads that the shopmen's strike is not against the carriers, but against the government, and therefore a matter to be settled before the labor board, the government's tribunal.

Explaining his failure to answer last Friday's summons to appear at a joint conference before the board, Mr. Jewell said the summons came to late to avert the walkout set for Saturday and that his appearance would only have caused confliction in the ranks of the shop craft who had orders to strike.

Fifty additional wage adjustment cases, 44 of which apply to clerks and not included in recent decisions, were set for hearing by the labor board Thursday.

Another conference between D. W. Helt, president of the railroad signalmen, and W. L. McMenimen, labor member of the board, who met Wednesday, was in prospect Thursday.

Drift Back, Report

Meanwhile the railroads generally were advertising for men to fill vacancies and strikers were reported at many points to be drifting back in uncertain numbers to their old jobs.

Maintenance men at various points were reported to be joining striking shopmen.

Railroads, for the most part, announced passenger and freight traffic still unhampered.

Ultimatums to strikers to return to work by the early part of next week or forfeit all seniority rights still stood effective in railroad shops.

Plan to Open 2 Coal Mines

Pittsburgh.—Forces of workmen Thursday began cleaning up two mines in the Pittsburgh bituminous district preparatory to operations under a scale which the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' association offered to the miners, and which the miners rejected before the strike became effective April 1. Several days will be required to put the properties in condition to hoist coal. They were under guard of deputy sheriffs and reports from the mine said there were no disorders.

Washington.—The coal strike in the United States has stimulated British exports of coal to South America, according to a report to the commerce department from Vice Counsel Devault at London.

Seek $20,000 for O'Donnell Death

Summons were served Thursday in a $20,000 death damage suit brought by Edward O'Donnell, Janesville, as administrator of the estate of Arthur M. O'Donnell, killed in a street car accident in Beloit, against the Beloit Traction company, a domestic corporation. The case will be scheduled in the Rock county circuit court before Judge George Grimm during the coming term.

Arthur O'Donnell was fatally injured in the car jam at the intersection of State street and East Grand avenue in Beloit on May 13, 1922.

During last May the Janesville youth was working at the Beloit Daily News plant. On the afternoon of May 13 O'Donnell left the newspaper office and started to board the interurban car at the intersection. Both the Beloit Traction company and the Rockford Interurban company have joint use of the stretch of tracks on the two streets.

Crushed by Car.

As O'Donnell sought to step on the Janesville bound interurban he noticed several women behind him. Courtesy caused him to step back and allow the women to precede him to the car platform. As he waited for an instant, a special Beloit street car crashed into the rear interurban loading platform, crushing the youth. He was so badly injured that he died 50 minutes later in the Beloit hospital.

Parts of the complaint filed by Attorney Thomas S. Nolan, Janesville, allege that the Beloit street car was being driven at a "dangerous and excessive speed." It is also claimed that O'Donnell or others had no reason to anticipate the approach of the street car at the intersection for the reason it was a special car and not ordinarily used.

Inquest Was Held

The sum of $20,000 is demanded as judgment.

At the inquest held after the accident, the jury held there was no one criminally responsible for the accident. Facts testified to at the inquest will be used as evidence in the pending litigation unless settlement is made.

The parents of Mr. O'Donnell reside on Terrace street in this city.

Train Delayed as Engine Goes Bad

Rolling stock on the Northwestern railway was suffering Wednesday from the strike of shop men. This was admitted by officials here Thursday.

Train 517 on the Northwestern was an hour and a half late. Due here at 11:20 a. m., it was pulled in by a reserve locomotive at 12:50 p. m. The engine failed at Afton when it was impossible to get up a head of steam on account of leaks. An extra engine was sent from South Janesville.

Four other trains were delayed Thursday for five or more minutes. Leaks were given as the cause.

The custom of inspecting locomotives at the end of each run has been impossible since the strike went into effect last Saturday. These breaks, usually considered minor when caught, have been allowed to grow.

No interference with the usual run of traffic has been felt on the St. Paul, local officials said.

Union men continue to mark time. Mass meetings are held here at 2 p. m. each day when the men are checked.

"We have had no new instructions from headquarters," said Charles Swan, secretary of the machinists and member of the publicity committee. "We are just transacting routine matters."

On Wednesday, copies of President H. E. Byram's ultimatum to the men to return to their jobs on or before July 10 were sent out to all St. Paul men in Janesville. No men have been hired here by the St. Paul.

Orders were received Thursday at the Northwestern shops in South Janesville not to hire any men, thus recalling a previous order. The orders, however, continue to leave the way open for the striking employes to return to their jobs by applying for rehiring.

The shops remain inactive.

JEFFERSON BOY IS DROWNED IN RIVER

Youth Believed Victim of Cramps; Body Found in Half Hour.

Jefferson.—Adam Segetesch, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Segetesch, this city, drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming in Rock river near the Jefferson plant of the Fort Atkinson canning company. The boy was about 14 years old, and it is said he was a good swimmer. It is evident he was overcome with cramps. Other boys were unable to save him. The body was recovered by Adolph Seeber after it had been in the water almost a half hour.

Funeral services of John Schmidt, 73, who died Sunday morning, were held at the home Wednesday at 1:30 p. m., the Rev. J. G. Bleiler officiating. Interment took place at Union cemetery. John Schmidt was born Jan. 11, 1849, at Helenville, a son of Johann and Margaretta Schmidt. During his early youth he came to Jefferson and has resided here continuously since. On Apr. 5, 1874, he was married to Miss Henrietta Eva Weiss of Jefferson. Seven children were born, namely, Alma, Adelia, Amanda (Mrs. John M. Metzen), Doris, (Mrs. Otto J. Spangler), Frank, Roy and Rena. Frank preceded his father in death Sept. 19, 1916. Mrs. Schmidt died Apr. 6, 1922. All of the surviving children are residents of Jefferson. Other surviving relatives are four grandsons, two brothers, Adam Schmidt of Portland, Ore., and Michael of Edgerton and two sisters, Mrs. Aaron Hake of Fort Atkinson and Mrs. J. P. Lang of Harvard, Ill. One brother, Edward and one sister, Mrs. Herman Lidicker, also have preceded Mr. Schmidt in death. John Schmidt was one of the best known men in Jefferson county. For the last 42 years he held the position of janitor of the court house. His health began to fail about six months ago and, since April 1, he had been unable to attend to his duties. The count board, at its last session, passed a resolution authorizing a sum of money to be paid, him monthly during his illness, in lieu of his regular salary as janitor. He served several terms as alderman and was a member of the Workingmen's society and one of the organizers of the local branch of Sons of Veterans.

Funeral services for George Copeland, who died in Jefferson July 2, were held at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ryder, at 7:30 a. m. Wednesday, the Rev. L. G. Landenberger officiating. The services were attended by the employees of the Copeland & Ryder company in a body, and by many friends. The body was sent to his birthplace in Massachusetts for burial. He was born in West Bridgewater, Mass., Oct. 22, 1831. He came to Jefferson in the fall of 1867. In the following spring, in company with his brother-in-law, Lewis Ryder, and his cousin, Edward Copeland, he began in a small way the making of shoes, from which beginning has come the present incorporated business of the Copeland & Ryder company. He has been connected as director and president with the Farmers & Merchants bank, and the movement for a public library was originated and aided materially by Mr. Copeland. For many years he was a member of the school board and inaugurated the movement that resulted in the school library. Religious and charitable institutions through the country have been literally benefitted by his contributions. Since the death of his wife in 1908, Mr. Copeland has made his home with his sister, Mrs. Ryder.

He volunteered in the World war, won his lieutenancy at Fort Sheridan and saw service in France with the Fourth division. WHITEWATER

Whitewater—The celebration in Whitewater drew one of the largest, if not the largest crowds ever seen in our city. The day was ideal and visitors came from long distances to join in the festivities.

The parade was more than a mile in length and consisted of a hundred floats. Many of them were real works of art, representing skill and a vast amount of work. Then there was the comic features with the clown band and other mirth-provoking stunts.

Music for the day was furnished by the Whitewater band, under the direction of Allen Adams. With new uniforms and a good selection of musical numbers, the band was one of the features of the celebration.

The program was at Library park at 11 a. m. After the invocation, the presiding officer, T. M. Blackaman introduced John Baker, Madison, who gave a short patriotic address. Music was furnished by a chorus under direction of Mrs. Earl Cox.

POST OFFICE PLANS STILL UP IN AIR

Improvements or additions on the local postoffice seem as far off as ever, according to word recently received by Postmaster J. J. Cunningham from Postmaster General Hubert Work.

A few weeks ago Dr. Work, reviewing the condition of offices and the need of new buildings all over the country, sent a request to Mr. Cunningham for information about the local office. He stated that so few improvements could be made in the present building, because of lack of space that only an addition, to cost a large sum of money, would relieve the congestion and provide adequate and healthful working space for the many employes.

Several requests have been made for this addition, but no action has been taken by the department or by congress.

GIRL, 9, VICTIM OF FIREWORKS

Beloit Child Dies of Burns Resulting from Play With Sparkler.

Eleanor Lovaas, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Lovaas, 1140 Ninth street, Beloit, was the victim of Fourth of July fireworks.

She died at the Emergency hospital Wednesday from burns received Tuesday night. The child's clothes became ignited, it is believed, from a sparkler, after the family had returned home from a picnic of P. E. Yates employes at Yost's park. The child was on the porch of the Lovaas home alone when her screams attracted her parents. She was badly burned on the front part of her body and arms and legs before they could extinguish the flames.

The child's mother was burned on her arms and hands when she attempted to tear the half burned clothes from Eleanor's body.

"It wasn't my fault, mother, I wasn't to blame," the child told her mother shortly before she died. The parents said the child was very careful with fireworks.

MONARCHIST COUP IN GERMANY HAS EFFECT ON ALLIES

Fear Wave of Radicalism

The gravity of the situation and especially the possible disintegration of the whole government structure if moral support from the allies is not forthcoming, is discussed in responsible quarters here. The fear is that, if the allies, by their bickerings, stand aloof while German is in travail, the monarchists by their extreme tactics will not themselves regain power but will upset the moderate party in control, which will mean a wave of radicalism, the rise of the communists and a possible repetition of the process whereby Russia passed from the era of Kerensky into the arms of Lenine and Trozky.

"Pressed on the one side by a reactionary group and tormented on the other by the communists, the Wirth cabinet is regarded by the allies as sincere in its efforts to pay reparations and work out a program of reconstruction. The French, however, have maintained their large standing army and have opposed concessions to the present German government on the ground that lurking behind the Wirth cabinet was the inevitable return of the monarchists. It is an ill wind that blows no good, for the demonstration in Berlin Tuesday, in fact ever since the Rathenau assassination, has furnished unmistakable evidence that if there is a politideal trend in Germany it will not be toward the monarchists of the right but more in the direction of radicals and communists of the left.

Situation More Critical

Since the failure of the recent conference of international bankers at Paris, where it had been hoped that Germany would be assured of a loan, so that she could pay her debts and begin to work out her destinies in an orderly fashion, events in Germany have grown steadily more critical and while it is, strictly speaking, an internal problem which the Germans must themselves solve, it is doubtful whether the allies and associated powers will stand by without offering some affirmative help which will strengthen the Wirth cabinet and moderates in their attempt to save Germany from disunion.

Allied diplomacy has usually waited for a catastrophe before acting. Russia's slow disintegration is vividly recalled as an example of allied procrastination. All the advice which the United States can give officially and unofficially through diplomatic channels and otherwise is being concentrated on the single proposition of dealing with the European problem by going to the root and causes of the present state of unsettlement. It is for instance being urged that the question of how much Germany should pay could properly be dismissed in favor of the more practical idea of what Germany really can pay.

Spread Ideals, Harding Urges

In regard to Russia, too, there is little disposition here to argue about the merits of recognizing the soviet government, because that question is viewed as academic, whereas the root of the matter is the attitude of the Russian government toward production and the restoration of those economic processes which enabled Russia to live in the past without famine and suffering.

It is significant that President Harding in his address at Marion swept aside all thought of supporting the isolationists who have insisted that George Washington's policy of standing apart from Europe must be permanent. Mr Harding said that "Frankly we have a broader viewpoint than the founding fathers; we must have, because human progress has altered our world relationships."

He added that "We cannot be aloof from the world but we can impress the world with American ideals."

Owe Debt to Germany

The policy of the United States not only during the last administration, but throughout the last century, has been to look sympathetically upon the rise of the liberal and republican spirit everywhere. The American government during the European war drew a distinction between the German government and the German people and did everything in its power to stimulate a revolution which would bring a republic to Germany. Now that the republic has come, all the allied governments are committed to its preservation. Events of the past few weeks have emphasized that the allies must soon give evidence of their support of the German republic or see it languish into communism and the chaos of its Russian neighbor. A change in the tactics of the allies can be expected if American influence is of no avail.

Dining Car Losses

The traveling public expects to enjoy on trains as good food and service as is offered by the best hotels.

To meet this demand the railroads yearly spend for dining car service considerably more than they receive therefrom.

Last year the Milwaukee Road served $17,000 meals.

Receipts per meal averaged $1.05, while the cost of food, service and supplies amounted to $1.25—a net loss of 20 cents per passenger served.

This does not include expense of heating and lighting, interest on investment, nor cost of handling the 54 cars nearly six million miles for the convenience of the public.

Her Voice Covers 150 Square Miles; How? Records, of Course

Miss Margaret Young.

New York.—Miss Margaret Young, vaudeville songstress, lays claim to the most far-reaching voice in the world.

And on the face of the records her claim appears to be substantiated.

Here's what Miss Young claims:

That her voice covers 150 square miles.

That it has traveled 110,000 miles.

That 5,000,000 persons have heard her sing.

Now the secret comes out. Miss Young sings for the "canned music" boxes. That's why the "records" bear out her claim.

More than 1,000,000 of her records have been sold. These, laid edge to edge, it has been figured, would cover 150 square miles.

The tiny, almost invisible sound line on the records is 600 feet long. One million records, that makes 600,000,000 feet, or about 110,000 miles, that her voice has traveled.

And in spite of it all Miss Young continues to sing merrily on.

"HAM AND" LOSES POPULARITY AS BREAKFAST DISH

Ham and eggs usually regarded as the typical American breakfast have been displaced by soft boiled eggs and toast, according to Janesville restaurant keepers. A few years ago ham and eggs were the most popular breakfast, but with changing times they seemed to have lost their popularity. Now not one out of ten people will order ham and eggs for breakfast.

In the number of sales, soft boiled eggs, toast and coffee seem to lead the field by those who desire a complete breakfast. A great number of restaurant eaters compromise on either grapefruit, cantaloupe or orange, sweet rolls and coffee. Doughnuts and coffee still maintain their popularity with counter eaters.

Roast beef apparently is the stable meat for dinner the year around, the restaurant men say. Day after day scores of people order the roast beef dinner. Roast pork also is popular, followed by ham. Apple pie is easily the most liked dessert followed by cherry and pumpkin pies and ice cream.

amendment is part of the constitution.

"The people have a right to say whether they want a wet country or a dry country, but no lover of liberty will permit the people to be tricked by any proposal which pretends one thing and intends another. We pledge ourselves to faithful observance, administration and enforcement of all the laws of our nation and of our state.

"Someone asked me the other day if we expected to win this campaign in the primary. Of course we do, because we know that we stand for the principles that the great bulk of our fellow citizens stand for. We have not over estimated either the intelligence or the conscience or the morals of the people of this state.

"But I will admit that if all the people in Wisconsin who are entitled to vote in the primary were equally divided in support of the governor and myself, the situation would be very critical, for I am obliged to concede that I could not cope with his pardoning power and that sufficient convicts might be pardoned to turn a close election.

"I believe the pardon power should be used with discretion and that all proceedings incident thereto should be conducted with the greatest publicity. If I am elected governor there will be no abuse of the pardon power."

Would Reduce Taxes

Morgan pledged himself to a program of economy in state government and to a consistent effort to reduce taxation by eliminating useless offices, boards and commissions.

"There is no good reason," he said, "why we should be compelled to pay all our taxes at the beginning of the year. Twenty states now permit semi-annual payments. It should be done in Wisconsin."

Action to stimulate home building and ownership was urged, and an increase in taxes on inheritances and larger incomes in case of emergency demanding additional revenue. He opposed repeal of the secrecy clause as working hardship in many cases without doing any good.

Rights of Labor

"Candidates on the independent progressive republican ticket stand pledged to work for an amendment of the workman's compensation law that will provide for a review of any award of the industrial commission which an injured workman may be advised is unjust in the county of the injured man's residence. Under the present provision of the compensation law all decisions of the industrial commission can be reviewed only in the circuit court of Dane county.

"The basic eight hour day should be adopted in industries when reasonably applicable.

"A plank in our platform which you of the north country will appreciate is this: Idle lands held for speculative purposes do not enrich the state. To encourage the development of uncultivated lands in Wisconsin the last legislature passed a law at my request exempting a 40 acre homestead of such land from all taxation for three years after purchase and occupancy. The bill I prepared had a five year exemption which I still favor.

"About everyone agrees that something should be done regarding rural credits. All have come to realize that the manufacturer and merchant, whose products are quickly sold, can be accommodated by short loans, that their problem is different than that of the farmer whose business requires financing upon long term loans.

"We offer a definite and concrete solution of the rural credit problem and advocate a system of long time rural credits by amendment of the land mortgage association act so that it will supplement the federal land bank system along similar lines and under state supervision.

Aid Co-operative Marketing

"We pledge ourselves to encourage and assist the co-operative marketing of farm and dairy products. One of the great stumbling blocks of co-operative associations is an inadequate system of financing and an improper system of accounting. We have a uniform accounting system for co-operative societies, and I believe the members of the co-operative associations, the people that have to foot the bills, would welcome a law that would place their financial operations and methods of bookkeeping under state supervision in much the same manner that state banks are now supervised by the commissioner of banking.

"Every failure of a co-operative enterprise, due to unsound business practices, handicaps the co-operative movement and makes it harder for the next to succeed. Vexatious regulations which hamper marketing and endanger the reputation of Wisconsin products should be withdrawn and the extravagant waste of taxpayers' money should be saved and applied to constructive co-operative effort."

A collie drew applause when it jumped through two fire lighted hoops on a revolving table. A fox trotting elephant and horses that did the cake walk, schottische fox trot and two step were other features. The circus went to Richland Center at night, where it showed Thursday.

TUBERCULAR COW IN POST-MORTEM

Health Authorities See Diseased Animal Shot and Dissected.

Realization of the danger of tuberculosis, and the danger of tubercular animals to the health of all people was brought home to members of the Janesville board of health and others, at a post mortem on a tubercular cow on the William Risch farm Mineral Point road, Thursday morning.

The examination was conducted by Dr. Arthur J. Knilans, federal inspector, of this city, and Dr. L. W. Cleland, veterinarian, also of Janesville.

The cow was one that was in the last stages of the disease, and would have lived only a day or two more, the examining doctors said. Six weeks ago it had been examined, and found practically free from the disease. Last winter she was giving as much as 50 pounds of milk a day for a period, and had been a good producer. A few weeks ago, however, the disease began to be noticeable, and Thursday morning the animal was unable to walk. The post mortem showed a bad condition, with nearly all the organs infected. Lesions were found throughout the body and it was almost impossible to find normal glands for comparison with the infected ones.

Inspected Udder.

The danger that is prevalent when milk from such a cow, or one even less infected, is sold, was shown when lesions, even though small, were found in the udder on the milk ducts.

"While a cow may have lesions in several organs" explained Dr. Leigh J. Woodworth, city sanitary inspector, who was among those present, "it does not necessarily mean that the milk contains tubercullin germs. However, when the disease advances more, the udder does become infected, and the germs are in the milk that in many cases is sold in the city or given to pigs and other animals on the farm, thus infecting them."

Dr. Knilans in making the post mortem, explained how the organs and flesh would appear if normal. The infection was easily discernible, especially in the lungs, even to a layman.

The animal killed Thursday for the examination was thin and bony, being in the last stages. However when the disease first attacks the animal, extra flesh and additional health seems noticeable. This is deceptive however, and is only a stimulation that precedes the breakdown. The disease attacks animals differently in different cases. Some lose rapidly, others more gradually.

Hospital Meeting.

Various sections of the organ were preserved by Dr. Knilans, and will be used in demonstrating at the meeting at Mercy hospital Thursday night, which will be attended by several state examiners and workers, the local board of health and local physicians. The meeting will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30, the talks and demonstration to start an hour later. Dr. J. S. Healey, who is in charge of tuberculin testing in Wisconsin, will be the main speaker. Motion pictures will be shown in an effort to make the physicians and others realize the seriousness of the situation, which is the first step in starting propaganda, eventually to lead to the tuberculin testing of every herd in the county in 1923. This is the object toward which the workers are now striving. It must come through citizens who consume the beef and the milk, doctors who handle the cases when humans are infected, the milk dealers who should see that all milk is properly pasteurized and through the farmer, who it is hoped, will support the county-wide test, going to the root of the trouble.

Dr. Wayne A. Munn, local physician, who has an excellent herd of Guernsey cows, and who is active in cattle breeding in the county, was present.

"People must come to realize the seriousness of this disease, and how easily it is transmitted before any real steps will be made to eradicate it," he said. He told of how easily the infection, if not coming through the beef or the milk, could come through butter, or through pork, from hogs infected from the cows.

Harder Case Is Dismissed by Maxfield

The case of Del Harder, charged with speeding on the evening of June 13 by Officer William Saxby, was dismissed Thursday morning after a lengthy hearing before Judge H. L. Maxfield, in municipal court.

The case brought out that on the night of June 13 Harder was returning from work about 6:30, passed Saxby on Main street, and turned the corner onto Racine. After driving up Racine street three blocks, he stopped to visit with L. A. Markham. After perhaps a 10 minute talk Officer Saxby approached and was quoted as saying, "I'm going to get you speeders. Come around to court tomorrow morning."

Harder then stated that he wasn't exceeding the limit of speed necessary to ascend the grade on Racine street, after which he claimed he was abused by Saxby.

On the witness stand Saxby acknowledged he had been drinking. Questioned by Attorney O. A. Oestreich as to how much he had taken, he answered, "One drink."

"How large a drink?" he was asked.

"Just what you'd take," he answered.

A hot rebuttal followed in which Mr. Oestreich made Saxby admit that he had never seen him take a drink.

In his talk before Judge Maxfield after the termination of the evidence, Mr. Oestreich referred to Mr. Saxby as "a boob policeman drinking too much liquor." Roger Cunningham appeared for the city.

"On the evidence presented before me, Harder is technically guilty of speeding, but I believe that no jury would ever convict him," said Judge Maxfield.

Exploding the allegation that Harder was driving with cut-out open it was testified that the car he was driving is not equipped with a cut-out.

THE MENACE OF CANCER

Increase in the spread of cancer has caused a renewed study of the disease and a stimulation of research in the field seeking a remedy and correction. We have been so successful in checking yellow fever, so almost final, in ending the menace of malaria, and making many millions of degenerate beings into active men and women by the discovery of remedies for hookworm that we are confident cancer can be conquered. Smallpox long ago ceased to be a terror and other diseases which have largely a foundation and inception in unsanitary methods of living have been checked or halted altogether. But cancer, according to Sir William Veno, an eminent British authority, is the disease of civilization and he adds:

"Somewhere undoubtedly in the civilized mode of living—dietary, habits and customs—is the key to the origin of the disease."

"It is of course not true that it is found only in civilized countries, but the increase appears to keep pace with civilization. From 1912 to 1918 there were recorded the world over 1,519,964 deaths, or an average rate of 71.6 per 100,000 of population. But while in Africa, or the small part of it included in the registration area, the rate was but 33.4, it was 65.7 in America. In Asia it was 54.4, in Australia 73, in Europe 76.6. In Great Britain cancer claims over 40,000 victims every year; in the United States over 80,000; in England and Wales, and in Holland, densely populated and highly civilized, the rate rises to 94 and 93 respectively. In Japan, where it was formerly almost unknown, cancer is almost as prevalent as in Europe. In the United States, Massachusetts heads the list with 83.6, while in Montana and Kentucky the rates are 53.7 and 48.3 from which Sir William Veno concludes that "white and highly-civilized populations suffer more than semi-civilized and barbaric peoples."

German biologists have made great strides in laboratory information about cancer but of results rather than causes. Many physicians have their own ideas as to causes and these vary. Whether diet or what other basic cause, has not been determined definitely and a complete statistical investigation will have to be made, if that information so vital to the human race is to be available. With adequate data it should be possible to determine with certainty whether diet in general or any article of diet has any casual relation to the disease. And if a remedy is not forthcoming as a result of such a comprehensive survey, it might be possible by a study of the results so to limit the field as to put the biologists on the track of what they must discover to solve the riddle and make an end of this scourge of mankind.

The American Institute through which this might be done would be the Rockefeller foundation but that does not go far enough. What is done should be with governmental authority especially in foreign countries and eventually an international commission will perhaps be found the only means of doing this great and splendid work for humanity.

THE BANKER OF MONTE CARLO

When Frank White, otherwise known as M. Francois Blanc, a notorious gambler, some 60 years ago lost his gaming concession at Homburg, he went to Monaco and made a deal with Charles III, the price of that tiny kingdom, thus establishing the Monte Carlo of today. Succeeding Charles came Albert who has just died and been given a little more space in the papers than otherwise, had he not been the world's greatest gambling profiteer. He received a salary, $1,500,000 a year from the gaming operators and all the expenses of the municipality were met by the Monte Carlo concessionaires. No one in Monte Carlo pays taxes but no citizen of the little city is permitted to play at the Casino. The game is only for the alien sucker. The gamblers have their own private government, a secret service highly organized for espionage of players, and some 1500 employes besides.

Established centuries ago by robbers who went out to sea and leveled tribute on every passing ship, the later life of Monaco has continued the tradition of its beginnings. No one hears of the dark side of Monte Carlo, of its black tragedies, for the newspapers are owned by the gamblers and print only the news desired.

The dead prince was shunned by other courts, never invited to any royal functions, had no standing socially, lived a lonely life, half-outcast, half-recluse, and gave attention to the floor of the ocean and its hidden mysteries to pass the time. As a scientist in oceanography he had been recognized by France and the United States—as a prince, given no recognition by anyone.

There may be a glamour about gambling—undoubtedly there is. It is found in all peoples, civilized and most of the barbarous nations, sometimes among savages, but a person who makes gambling a profession is despised, no matter where or when, how great or small, from tin-horn to high stakes. The Prince of Monaco lived grandly off the weaknesses of others. He wrapped himself in luxury bought with the blood money of victims of gambling insanity. That he was a prince added nothing but rather detracted from his position in reference to the game. The very attitude of the world toward him shows that we all recognize the game even at Monte Carlo as outlaw.

It is reported that a little Ohio town has no politicians because no one can be found for the offices. That is not a lack of politicians but a failure on the part of the people to appreciate the needs of their own government.

Quest For Typical American

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington — Is there such a thing as the typical American—typical in physiognomy, stature, figure, complexion and the like? Scientists of the Smithsonian Institution say there is not, and they ought to know, for they have been making an exhaustive study of the question for eight years. There is a tendency toward the development of an American type of man or woman, but that is all.

In the extensive investigation of the physical and physiological features of the oldest and most American element in the population of the United States some 1,700 individuals were examined. Only healthy men and women ranging in age from 24 to 65 years and with at least three generations American born on each parental side were included in the study, and most of these were subjected to examination under standardized conditions and with the best instruments as well as care at the National museum.

Difficulty in finding "specimens" who would fill all the requirements explains the length of time required for the investigation. It was found necessary to make trips to parts of New England and into the south, and in the end the individuals chosen may be said to represent all walks of life and all occupations. An especially interesting group was found among the mountaineers of Tennessee and neighboring regions, where an unusually large percentage of the people are said to be of direct American descent for many generations.

Not the least important feature of the study was the determination of the temperature, pulse and respiration standards of these representative "old" Americans. Physicians and anthropologists will find the result of this phase of the work very valuable, as the figures arrived at may be accepted as standards! The mean temperature, taken at rest, the subject seated and with the thermometer under the tongue, was 98.6 for the men and 98.8 for the women. The mean pulse under similar conditions was 71 per minute, for the men and 76 for the women. The mean respiration was 17.1 per minute for the men and 18.2 for the women.

* * * *

Tall stature is characteristic of these men and women who may be said to be representative of old Americans. In fact, if a few small groups are disregarded, they are the tallest of whites, the average height for the men being five feet eight inches and for the women, five feet four inches. This superiority in stature is in part a distinctly American acquisition, and is one of the tendencies noted toward the development of a type.

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of the division of physical anthropology in the United States National museum, who had charge of the study, made the first announcement relative to it in a paper read before the second international congress of eugenics at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. In discussing the characteristics of the men and women examined he said:

"They are mostly relatively 'spare' in early adult life, with rather a tendency to overweight later on. In this connection there appears one serious feature—many of the younger women are behind their due standard. Their chests, their muscles, are not as well developed as are those of the men. The men, in the average, are in every way a fine lot. The non-working women, many of them, are physically somewhat neglected, which calls for an improvement. Naturally this does not apply to the farm girl or the athletic girl, or the one whose development has been supervised and assisted in a high-class college; but there is a large proportion who do not fall into these classes, and it is these who show subdevelopment.

"But the American woman shows a superior head. The size of her head is somewhat above what it usually is in relation to the average head of the male, and it is also perceptibly above that indicated by her stature. As the size of the head means a corresponding size of brain, we have here a highly favorable condition. The form of the head in the old American stock differs widely, according to parentage.

"A much greater progress in 'Americanization' is shown by the face. This has lost the prominence of the cheek bones and that of the angles of the lower jaw, and in the well nourished approaches a characteristic straight-sided, rather high oval. The nose is variable, with tendency to convex (acquiline) in males, and concave-convex in females. The hands, feet, mouth, ears are not large, but also not small."

* * * *

In declaring that there is no American type of either man or woman as yet, still there is an approach to such a type in physiognomy, stature, build, pigmentation and in other directions, Dr. Hrdlicka said that heredity is still most in evidence, but is no longer absolute.

"The old Americans are to an important degree still the English, Scotch or Dutch of their ancestry," said the doctor, "but in part they are already something new, common, acquired in this land—they are American. Were it possible for this stock to breed exclusively among themselves for several more centuries they, according to all indications, would produce as distinct a national type as have the various older European nations. But intermarriage with more recent elements of the population is so common that no hope can be entertained for any rapid progress in this direction. Form of head, that was supposed once to show rapid changes, was found under the new enviroment to be one of the most persistent of characteristics.

"Another prevalent notion that finds no support in the results of these investigations is that of any physical difference between the old Americans of the northeast, the Yankees, and those of the south. The only regional difference in the old American stock is such as is due to different ancestry, English, Scotch, Huguenot, etc. But the whole strain shows a plain tendency towards darkening of hair and diminution of blondness."

The long governmental investigation to determine whether there is such a being as the typical American did not take into consideration those people who are to be regarded as the only true Americans—the Indians. Here a type may be found, for the essential characteristics of the Indian are uniform. Above the average height, with a tendency to overweight after middle age, the Indians are almost invariably of red or copper-colored complexion, with straight black hair, brown eyes, high cheek bones and rather broad faces. No one would ever look upon a pure-blood Indian and have any doubts as to what he was.

PROGRESS

I am the dream of tomorrow, I am the better way,
I am the flower of the seed toilers are planting today;
I am what men haven't done but often have wondered about,
I am the problem unsolved, but young minds are working me out.

I am a field unexplored, radiant with visions and dreams,
Mountains made low for men's feet, bridges flung over the streams;
I am the chance for the boy still at his fair mother's knee,
I am the goal he may reach, I am the man he can be.

I am the road out of strife, the unbuilded castles of men,
The peace which no war shall destroy, the beauties of brush and of pen
Which canvas and paper shall know in the days that shall make up the years,
I am the joy that shall be in spite of the cynic who sneers.

Slowly but surely I rise, smoothing the way of mankind,
And always the better I build, leaving old customs behind;
I am the hope of our youth, the splendor of dawn and the sun,
I am the dream unachieved, the task which shall some day be done.

VACATION

I would like to climb up in the mountains
And battle with snakes and their ilk.
I would live in a tent and get rid of the rent,
And walk seven miles for the milk.
I would choke a wildcat before breakfast.
Like primitive man I would go.
I would get a good rest and that trip is the best,
But, on second thought—I don't know.

I should perhaps go to the seashore
An daily around with the tides.
I'd fight the sand fleas while taking my ease—
Mosquitoes and chiggers, besides.
A nice coat of tan is expensive.
I'd get one down there by the drink.
Alluring are peaches who stroll on the beaches,
But, still, I don't know—let me think.

I ought to sail over the ocean.
I could spend my money that way.
Boob-trimmers, I hear, fill Europe this year.
They're skinning our folks every day.
It seems a long trip to be buncoed.
I doubt if it's worth all the fuss—
So I guess I won't roam, but will stick around home.
And take a few rides on the bus.

Who's Who Today

HANIEL VON HAIMHAUSEN

It is generally considered in Berlin that Haniel von Haimhausen will be named German foreign minister to succeed Walter Rathenau, recently assassinated. Herr von Haimhausen, under secretary to Rathenau, is now in charge of the foreign office.

Americans probably will recall that von Haimhausen was one of the chief advisers of Ambassador von Bernstorff in the U. S. when that arch plotter was at work before America entered the war. It was von Haimhausen's connection with von Bernstorff that eliminated the former as a possibility when Germany sought to select a new ambassador to the U. S. after the war ended. Von Haimhausen was counsellor at the German embassy during Berstorff's regime.

The acting foreign minister's last important mission was as a member of the German peace commission which was sent to the Versailles peace conference in 1919 to plead Germany's helpless condition.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

July 6, 1882 — The state convention of the Wisconsin Teachers association is being held in this city. First sessions were held at the Congregational church yesterday afternoon, when Supt. McAllister gave an address. Mayor T. T. Croft gave the address of welcome this morning at Cannon's hall. Many people went to the Central school, where they saw for the first time a kindergarten and the work it does.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

July 6, 1892 — Nearly 80 people left the city this morning for New York city on an excursion trip. The special train will pick up passengers all the way to Chicago. From then on, none will be taken on. The excursionists will visit Niagara Falls, and then New York, where they will stay for a number of days. Frank A. Spoon was in charge of the local delegation.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

July 6, 1902 — Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wills celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday. They had planned to spend it quietly, but were surprised by the G. A. R. and the W. R. C.—The Fourth was celebrated at Edgerton with a number of good horse races, attended by many Janesville people.—The casualty victims reported as a result of the Fourth are all recovering.

TEN YEARS AGO

July 6, 1912 — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nolan and daughter Vera leave tonight for Olympia, Wash., where they will make their home.—Janesville Boy Scouts returned to this city tonight after an overnight hike to Edgerton. They are enthusiastic about the work, which has been started only recently.

SOURCE OF TRUE HELP

My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.—Psalm 121:2.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

IS IODINE A REMEDY FOR GOITRE?

Two thousand years ago the Greek physicians prescribed sponge charcoal with some success in the treatment of goitre. In other words, an iodine treatment had been used empirically long before the relation of iodine in food with the function of the thyroid gland was known.

Regions where goitre is endemic are usually free from exophthalmic type of goitre, in which iodine does harm. In these goitre regions, for instance in parts of Switzerland, and in certain of the Great Lakes regions in America, the people seldom eat sea food. Sea food contains iodine in a readily assimilated form; the iodine of commerce is obtained from sea weed.

Sea fish is good for people who have simple goitre. It is perhaps harmful for people who have exophthalmic goitre. It is neither good nor bad for people who have cystic goitre.

Just why iodine metabolism is defective in certain young women in goitre regions we do not know. Nor in fact, do we know that the benefit obtained from sea food is wholly due to its content of iodine. It may possibly be that sea food, used in place of meat, simply improves digestion by diminishing the intestinal putrefaction and autointoxication which some authorities assign as the underlying cause of the simple goitre. Thorough intestinal antisepsis seems to bring about recovery in a fair share of the cases of simple goitre.

Prolonged rest in bed in the open air, precisely as for pulmonary tuberculosis, is still the most effective treatment for Basedow's disease—exophthalmic goitre. Surgery remains the second choice, when the open air rest cure fails. There is one feature of the operation for goitre which has not been sufficiently emphasized, namely, that while operation is usually safer than procrastination when the patient's condition is changing from bad to worse, it cannot and does not cure. Operation merely places the patient in the way of obtaining ultimate cure through prolonged rest in bed in the open air. Surgery is frequently a necessity, a life-saving resort in bad cases of exophthalmic goitre, but not a treatment to be sought without first having employed the open air rest cure for a reasonable length of time.

For the large, long standing cystic goitre, nothing else than surgery offers much chance of complete cure. For the simple goitre surgery should be rarely if ever attempted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Pain in the Back.

Kindly suggest a good kidney remedy. I suffer considerably with dull pain in the small of the back. (F. L.)

Answer—If you assume that pain in the small of the back is a symptom of kidney trouble you are sadly misinformed. Pain in that situation is very rarely felt by persons who really have kidney trouble. Pain in the back, like pain in the head, is most frequently reflex in origin, and in order to obtain relief you should undergo a thorough examination by a physician. It would be unwarranted extravagance on your part to experiment blindly with such a symptom.

A Cruel Mistake.

A niece of mine, 14 years of age, and a cousin about 17, are both afflicted with hideous eruptions of pimples and blackheads much of the time. The boy is a harem scarem sort, but the girl is quiet and retiring. Is such trouble a sign of some sexual disturbance? (S. H. M.)

Answer—No. That is one of the old fishwife superstitions, and a very cruel one. Blackheads and pimples occur in boys and girls from 12 to 20 very commonly, so very commonly that it is practically physiological. As a matter of fact, persons with sexual disturbances or actual venereal disease, seldom or never show any signs on the face. So you see how wicked the delusion really is.

Killing Flies in the House.

Can you suggest any agent which will poison flies in the house without being dangerous to children or pets? (Mrs. D. C. T.)

Answer—Careful tests and experiments carried out by experts in the United States public health service at Washington proved that a solution of salicylic of soda in water (1 per cent—approximately five grains to an ounce) sweetened with sugar and allowed to stand in an open vessel where the flies can eat it, is safe and superior to most poisonous fly killers.

Q. Why are more home runs made nowadays in baseball? R. S.

A. Men connected with big league baseball say that a definite answer cannot be given. Contributing factors are the lively ball in use at present; the physical condition of the men making the home runs, and their intensive training and experience.

Q. Is the incubator a modern invention? R. M. L.

A. Devices for the artificial hatching of chickens from eggs were known to mankind from the early ages. Pliny says that the Egyptians thus hatched 100,000,000 chickens in a year. The first patented invention of the modern incubator was in 1847, but practical success with such machines was not met with until 1877.

Q. What edible liquid remains liquid when air tight, but hardens when exposed to the air? L. J.

A. The bureau of chemistry says that maple syrup fits this description.

Q. What countries did Napoleon rule? H. S.

A. At one time or other during his career Napoleon controlled France, parts of Italy, Russia, Prussia, the Netherlands, Spain and Portugal.

Q. What does Shantung mean? T. W. F.

A. The word is derived from the Chinese and literally means mountains east.

Q. How much heat does the human body generate? R. E. M.

A. Taking the weight of the average man at 140 pounds he gives off 336 to 400 British thermal units per hour when at rest, 368 to 473 when in easy action and 525 to 735 when at hard work.

The Canning Season Is Here

Every housekeeper should begin now to replenish her stock of canned fruits and vegetables, jellies and preserves.

There are three reasons why she should always keep on hand a goodly supply of these foods: first, to make her family healthier and better nourished; second, to provide a pleasing variety of succulent, tender young fruits and vegetables throughout the winter instead of having them only during the short time when they are in season; third, to save food which otherwise would go to waste.

Canning is not difficult if one understands the reason for each step in the method. There is absolutely no chance of spoilage if proper instructions are followed.

The States Relations Service has gone thoroughly into the science of canning and has issued an authoritative booklet on this subject. It explains the different processes, the proper equipment to use, and gives tested recipes. This is a free Government publication and our Washington Information Bureau will secure a copy for any reader who fills out and mails the coupon below. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1922

Contrary stars rule today, according to astrologers. Early in the morning Jupiter is in benefic aspect and late in the day Neptune is friendly, but during the busiest hours Mars and Uranus are strongly adverse.

It is a planetary government under which to be cautious, for while Jupiter encourages initiative, destructive forces are strong and the tendency may be to take foolish risks.

All the signs again appear to point to military interest. There will be much attention centered on the army, or at least on the preparation for national defense.

Mars is in a place of sinister portent and the seers give little hope of world peace.

Wrong thinking, which means envy, greed, jealousy and suspicion, may be prevalent in the next few months when public questions will arouse a divergence of opinion.

This is not a favorable sway for domestic happiness, the stars inclining men to be arrogant and women to be sensitive.

All the planetary influences tend toward the sort of individualism that makes family life exceedingly difficult.

The loss of the ideal of unselfishness is one of the causes of divorces and lack of home life, the seers point out, and they add that this year will bring the nation face to face with unpleasant facts about changed standards of life.

Scandals among young folk in high schools and colleges again are forecast and for these mature men and women will be held responsible, it is prognosticated.

Self-control is enjoined at this time when there may be great discontent and unrest accentuated by the rule of the stars.

The position of Saturn is not satisfactory for crops. Cold and wet weather may mark certain parts of the United States.

Many persons of supreme achievement are to be the guests of the United States, owing to an international crisis, it is confidently prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is should attend to business along old lines and should avoid making any changes in the coming year. They will benefit through friends, in all probability.

Persons born on this day may be headstrong and difficult to manage, but able to win success.

NEW GAS LIGHT CO. of Janesville

At the Villa Rose

BY A. E. W. MASON

SYNOPSIS OF VILLA ROSE.

Celie Harland is companion to Mme. Dauvrey of the Villa Rose. She meets Harry Wethermill at Aix les Bains. Ricardo, adventurer, sees Celie play at the Casino at Aix. Two days later after Ricardo had met Celie, Wethermill rushes to him with the news of the murder of Mme. Dauvrey. Celie has disappeared. Wethermill begs Ricardo to aid him in tracing the young woman. Hanaud, a detective, is engaged. He makes a careful examination of the Villa Rose and discovers the jewels which are supposed to have been taken hidden in the floor of Mme. Dauvrey's room. Celie is traced to Geneva, the auto in which she fled having been found. Mlle. Vauquier, a maid, showing hatred for Celie, is believed to have been one of the conspirators in the murder. A valuable diamond belonging to Mme. Dauvrey has been taken away and Celie was known to have worn the ring. Hanaud advertises for information of the young woman. He receives an answer from a Marthe Gobin at Geneva and she is on her way to Aix. She arrives and dies in the cab. Hanaud finds that she has been killed by a fine skewer stabbed into her heart on the way from the station. Wethermill is distracted at the death of the woman and the closing of the clue to finding Celie. He is deeply in love with the girl. The net is closing in on Mlle. Vauquier. The trail is taken by Hanaud to Geneva and from a house where she is held prisoner and about to be killed. Celie is rescued. Hanaud announces to the astonished Ricardo that Harry Wethermell has been arrested for the murder of Mme. Dauvrey and Marthe Gobin.

"I will turn on the light," she said. And through the chinks in the curtain the bright light shone. Celie heard a loud rattle upon the table, and then fainter sounds of the same kind. And as a kind of horrible accompaniment there ran the labored breathing of the man, which broke now and then with a sobbing sound. They were stripping Mme. Dauvray of her pearl necklace, her bracelets, and her rings. Celie had a sudden importunate vision of the old woman's fat, podgy hands loaded with brilliants. A jingle of keys followed.

"That's all," Helene Vaquier said. She might have just turned out the pocket of an old dress.

There was the sound of something heavy and inert falling with a dull crash upon the floor. A woman laughed, and again it was Helene Vauquier.

"Which is the key of the safe?" asked Adele.

"That one." And Helene Vauquier replied.

Celie heard some one drop heavily into a chair. It was Wethermill and he buried his face in his hands. Helene went over to him and laid her hand upon his shoulder and shook him.

"Do you go and get her jewels out of the safe," she said, and she spoke with a rough friendliness.

"You promised you would blindfold the girl," he cried hoarsely.

Helene Vauquier laughed.

"Did I?" she said. "Well, what does it matter?"

"There would have been no need to——" And his voice broke off shudderingly.

"Wouldn't there?" And what of us—Adele and me? She knows certainly that we are here. Come, go and get the jewels. The key of the door's on the mantel shelf. While you are away we two will arrange the pretty baby in there."

She pointed to the recess; her voice rang with contempt. Wethermill staggered across the room like a drunkard, and picked up the key in trembling fingers. Celie heard it turn in the lock, and the door bang. Wethermill had gone upstairs.

Celie looked back, her heart fainting within her. Arranged! It was her turn now. She was to be "arranged." She had no doubt what sinister meaning that innocent word concealed. The dry, choking sound, the horrid scuffling of feet upon the floor, were in her ears. An if had taken so long—so terribly long!

She heard the door open again and shut again. Then steps approached the recess. The curtains were flung back, and two women stood in front of her—the tall Adele Rossignol with her red hair and her coarse good looks and her sapphire dress, and the hard-featured sallow maid.

The maid was carrying Celie's white coat. They did not mean to murder her, then. They meant to take her away, and even then a spark of hope lit up in the girl's bosom. For even with her illusions crushed she still clung to life with all the passion of her young soul.

The two women stood and looked at her; and then Adele Rossignol burst out laughing. Vauquier approached the girl, and Celie had a moment's hope that she meant to free her altogether, but she only loosed the cords which fixed her to the pillar and the high stool.

"Mademoiselle will pardon me for laughing," said Adele Rossignol, politely; "but it was mademoiselle who invited me to try my hand. And really, for so smart a young lady, mademoiselle looks too ridiculous."

She lifted the girl up and carried her back writhing and struggling into the salon. The whole of the pretty room was within view, but in the embrasure of a window something lay dreadfully still and quiet. Celie held her head averted. But it was there, and, though it was there, all the while the women joked and laughed; Adele Rossignol feverishly, Helene Vauquire with a real glee most horrible to see.

"I beg mademoiselle not to listen to what Adele is saying," exclaimed Helene. And she began to ape in a mincing, extravagant fashion the manner of a saleswoman in a shop. "Mademoiselle has never looked so ravishing. This style is the last word of fashion. It is what there is of most chic. Of course, mademoiselle understands that the costume is not intended for playing the piano. Nor, indeed, for the ballroom.

"It leaps to one's eyes that dancing would be difficult. Nor is it intended for much conversation. It is a costume for a mood of quiet reflection. But I assure mademoiselle that for pretty young ladies who are the favorites of rich old women it is the style most recommended by the criminal classes."

All the woman's bitter rancor against Celie, hidden for months beneath a mask of humility, burst out and ran riot now. She went to Adele Rossignal's help, and they flung the girl face downward upon the sofa. Her face struck the cushion at one end, her feet the cushion at the other. The breath was struck out of her body. She lay with her bosom heaving.

Helene Vauquier watched her for a moment with a grin, paying herself now for her respectful speeches and attendance.

CASEY THE COP

THE LADIES WON'T LEAVE HIM ALONE

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a pretty blonde, 15 years old, and am deeply in love with a boy considerably older than I. I have only seen him twice, but am convinced that it is a case of love at first sight.

I have gone with many other boys who seem to care greatly for me. I think I could arrange a meeting with this boy. Will you please tell me how to attract his attention? I feel that life is not worth living without him.

At present he goes with another girl who is considerably "faster" than I. How can I attract him without exciting my parents' disapproval?

JEALOUS.

It is not your place to make an effort to attract boys. Unless he notices you voluntarily, let him go. If you try to bring yourself before his eyes you will probably cheapen yourself and will disgust him.

I think you are decidedly uncharitable when you say the other girl is "faster" than you are. You are only jumping at conclusions and it suits your fancy to think she is not so nice. In reality she probably has just as much character as you have.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sweet 16. I quit school two years ago to take care of mother. Last year I started in again, but had to quit, and this year it was the same.

My parents object to my just having friends, although my father let me go to a play with a neighbor boy. He let my 10 year old brother go along, which I think was not right when he had a way to go besides going with me.

I went to an ice cream social the other night with my cousin and the same boy who took me to the play asked to take me home. I refused. Do you think it would have been all right? This boy asked to take me many places, but I have refused (it was just to church at night and to neighborhood parties), telling him I was afraid I would not get my work done in time and to wait until mother gets better. I know he cares for me because he has made love to me many times.

We don't have a chance to talk very often. The other night my cousin and I went down to one of our neighbors who is a relation. The boy came down. He made love to me then and told me he hoped my parents would not object to my going with him as soon as my mother got well. He says he will wait until my parents no longer object if it is until I am 18.

What is the meaning when a boy kisses your hand?

SWEET SIXTEEN.

You are really very young to go with boys. I think, however, that it would be all right to let the boy call on you occasionally in your home. You say you want boy friends and nothing more. Evidently the boy does not understand or he would not be making love to you. You are certainly too young to permit love-making and should insist upon maintaining friendship and nothing more.

Since you went to the social with your cousin, it was only right for you to return with your cousin. If the boy wanted to go home with both of you, it would have been all right providing your cousin did not object.

There is no particular meaning when a boy kisses your hand. He is simply affectionate and likes you. You are too young to permit kisses even in that way.

ANSWERED LETTERS

B. A. M.—These small lines under your eyes do not denote age. If you use an astringent once a week and cream every day, you will keep the skin supple and also firm, so these lines do not form. A club sandwich is a whole meal in itself and could not be eaten from the fingers like the dainty sandwiches served at teas. The tips given to waiters are usually 10 per cent of the order.

Mrs. H. C. L.—The "Pilocarpine Tonic" acts upon the color secretions, but it has other properties, as it tones the scalp and builds up the health of the hair. Everything in the formula contributes to the tonic something that is needed, so if you merely took pilocarpine and added it to other tonics, you should know all about the proportions and whether or not you are not making a bad mixture.

Peggy—If your pivot tooth is a different shape from the others the dentist made a bad selection, or you may not be keeping the natural teeth as clean as they were when the dentist crowned this tooth. Try a different tooth paste and if the tooth continues to look artificial you will have to change it. The different "Tinctures of Green Soap" make excellent shampoos.

Toots—At 19, the lines in your neck are only temporary and will disappear if you massage the throat, using a good cream. If you are underweight build up the system, which will also fill out these lines.

E. A.—There is not space enough to give a full reduction diet, but you may have this information if you send a stamped addressed envelope repeating your request.

H. L.—The skin is sometimes in the condition you describe merely because of poor elimination. Often a sluggish liver or an impacted colon will cause the skin to become red and also very dry. Clear the system and note the result in your complexion.

L. M.—Little children often have warts for a time and they disappear without treatment. If they do not dissolve after applying oil to them, try turpentine for three or four days. Another method is to moisten the warts and then rub salt into them.

Stenographer—The only way you can change the shade of your hair is to bleach it in the part where it is changing. It is evident that yours is gradually growing darker. Doubtless, if you bear with the change now you will be rewarded in a short time by having much better results. If you began to bleach it that would only lead to a continuance and an unnatural looking head.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

I like all cooking and particularly bread making. There's creative punch to that particular job. You can't hurry the making of good bread. The yeast has to grow within the dough, and natural processes take time. If you push it with too much warmth or too soft a dough you're going to get a sour or flabby product that's only fit to be fed to the pig. But given a well kneaded, sturdy mixture, a temperate, steady warmth, and sufficient time, and you'll achieve something that comes mighty near to being the fundamentals of a human. I have always felt that Bread Making was a much more vital ministry to the people I care for than Welsh Rabbits or Most Sermons.

There are other foods much more showy and more quickly made than bread—baking powder biscuits, for instance. A baking powder biscuit is built on speedster lines. If you can step lively—and you must step lively to make good ones—you can have 'em browned and on the table in 20 minutes from the time you begin to rub in the shortening. And they're great! As quick an' easy productions there is nothing better—while they last. But there's the rub. A baking powder biscuit is a winner if you catch it on the wing, as it were, but it's a poor bet the morning after. While they're fresh and warm you wouldn't swap 'em for a plum pudding. But let 'em cool and they're only second hand food. But good bread will last for days, growing sweeter and more mellow. Same flour, same shortening, same milk, same oven. But in one process the flour seems to have ripened into a perfect, sustaining strength and in the other it has just—exploded.

Folks are like that, aren't they? Takes some a long time to shape up—lots of kneading by hard knocks, plenty of waiting. But when they're done they're wonderful. Just knowing them feeds your soul and the longer you know them the better they are. But others are baking powder biscuits. Up they pop in the midst of a joyous razzle-dazzle and for a while they're the tastiest article on the market. You can't get enough of them. But a little time passes—they grow cold and stale. You can't depend on them. They're second rate spirits. Funny, isn't it!

"Those are trees," was the answer. "Where are they going?" she asked.

MODERN SERVANTS

There is no such thing as having a gas stove show impudence or of having a vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper ask for every Thursday and every Sunday afternoon off or of having the fireless cooker give notice. To be sure these modern servants of the household sometimes stop working, but they are very quiet about it. They show no impudence. They simply stop going sometimes and that is the end of it. It calls for no powers of tact or cajoling to get them to going again. The trouble has been that we have been neglectful. With such things as washing machines or vacuum cleaners the trouble often is that we have been forgetful about oiling them. If we use ordinary good sense they will not go back on us. And so it is that a very large number of housewives in good circumstances, circumstances in which some years ago they would have kept one or two servants, are going along with their housework without having to learn the gentle art of managing and directing other people. Once every young woman in fairly good circumstances was supposed to cultivate the ability to direct servants. She observed her mother and sometimes had practice in her own home. But there are thousands and thousands of maidless households now where things go along without any of the periodic upheavals that used to be caused by a change of maids and where there is never the little undercurrent the feeling that Molly has to be handled with gloves or that Dinah mustn't be given an opportunity to be impertinent or that Bridget will give notice if we're late to dinner. In the old days to have put up even with indifferent help was the lesser of two evils. Every woman chose it in preference to the other task of having to keep house without any assistance. Now she has a dozen or so mechanical or electrical aids that have spoiled her. They have been so patient, so self-effacing, so lacking in moods or temperament that even if the wages of domestic help bring servants back within the reach of the housewife in moderate circumstances she may choose to remain in her maidless heaven.

ONE TRICK A NIGHT

"MAKES TABLE TALK BRIGHT."

THE GLASS OF CIDER UNDER THE HAT

Place a glass of cider or grape juice on a table and cover it with a hat.

Now wager anyone that you can drink the liquid without raising up the hat. When your wager has been accepted, crawl underneath the table and commence smacking your lips as if you were sucking the cider through the table. After a minute or so come from underneath the table and say to the person who has taken your waged: "Now, sir."

He will, of course, conclude that the trick is completed. He will therefore immediately raise the hat in order to ascertain whether or not the cider has been consumed by you.

As soon as he does this, take the glass, drink the contents, and say, "YOU HAVE LOST sir, and I have drunk the cider without lifting the hat." This usually creates much laughter when it is found that your victim has been duped into lifting the hat himself, thus enabling you to win the bet.

GRAIN

Chicago Review.

Chicago.—Wheat underwent a decided setback in price Thursday. Houses with eastern connections were rather heavy sellers and crop developments were favorable as a rule. Reports as to lessened chances of black rust damage had a bearish effect. The opening, which varied from ⅛c to 1¼c decline, with Sept. $1.15½@1.16, and Dec. $1.18¼@1.18⅝, was followed by a material additional drop in values.

Around $1.14 for Sept., paid by commission house buyers, caused a moderate rally. Bullish European crop estimates, together with announcement of a decrease in the available supply total assisted the upturn somewhat. Prices closed unsettled, 1⅜c to 2c net lower, with Sept. $1.14⅛@1.14⅝ and Dec. $1.17⅛@1.17¼.

Rains in the corn belt tended to ease the market. After opening ⅜@⅝c lower, Sept. 67⅛@67⅝c, the corn market continued to sag.

Subsequently the market became firmer. It was said more corn than the trade had realized was being worked for export from day to day. The close was unsettled at ½@⅝c net decline, Sept. 67⅛@67½c.

Oats started unchanged to ¼c off, Sept. 38⅞@39c, and later declined all around.

Provisions lacked support.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review.

New York.—Cotton carriers led the more general advance of rails during the morning. Atlantic Coast Line increased its gain to 4½ points and L. & N. showed a 4 point advance. Gains of 1 to 2½ points marked the demand for coalers, especially D. L. & W., Reading and Erie first preferred. Further pronounced strength of domestic oils with Standard of New Jersey gaining 5½ points was offset by renewed weakness of Mexicans. Constant pressure caused a reaction of 5½ points in Mexican Petroleum. Coppers, independent steels and gas shares were firm to strong. Call money opened at 4¼ per cent.

Covering of short contracts in the foreign oils and buying of rails based on the better outlook for an early settlement of the strike were factors in the firmer tone of the early market. Mexican Petroleum and Pan American A registered initial gains of 1¾ points with further strength in Cosden, California Petroleum and General Asphalt. Studebaker rose 1⅝ points and Crucible and Baldwin Locomotive strengthened. Atlantic Coast Line featured the rails, rising 2¾ points in the first few transactions. Canadian Pacific and Missouri Pacific preferred also were substantially better. Nova Scotia Steel was the one weak issue, declining almost 4 points.

High grade rails continued to move forward in the final hour under lead of Louisville and Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific and Great Northern. Steels and equipments also added to previous advances. The closing was strong. Sales approximated 750,000 shares.

KENOSHA BANDITS ABANDON RICH LOOT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Kenosha.—Two suit cases, containing jewelry valued at thousands of dollars, which had been stolen from the home of A. E. Lance, vice president of the Simmons company here, were found in a yard on South Sheridan road here. The suitcases had been under a tree in the yard for hours before discovered, it is believed. While the loot has been recovered, the identity of the burglar remains a mystery. In the suit cases were found many old corals and pieces of jade which were heirlooms in the Lance family. In addition there was a score of diamonds. No reason has been discovered for the burglars abandoning their loot.

An Aid to Wearing This Season's Fashions

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package and mix fresh as wanted. —Advertisement.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps are prepared, shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. —Advertisement.

ARRANGE SCHEDULE FOR COUNTY TOUR

Country and City Join Hands to See "Rock County First."

A complete schedule is being worked out for the Rock county farm tour to be held on July 13 when country and city will join hands for a demonstration trip in the north-western section of the county. The tour will start from the court house park in Janesville at 8:30 o'clock and end in the afternoon at the Rock county farm.

Only a limited number of stops are to be made to prevent congestion and hurry, so that those on the tour will have full advantage of seeing the farms visited and inspecting the livestock. J. G. Fuller, G. C. Humphrey, L. F. Graber, A. W. Hokin, K. L. Hatch, Edward Nordman, Reid Murray, L. F. Oldham, J. S. Healey are among the state agricultural authorities expected to make the "Rock county First" tour.

See Prize Livestock.

The first stop will be made at the farm of Clarence Croft where there will be a Duroc demonstration. Several herd boars have been sold from this farm for $10,000 and the herd is considered as truly representing the type of good swine raised in the county. Good animals from several other farms, including that of L. A. Ruehti, will be added to the Croft herd for the demonstration. The next farm will be that of Harvey Little where Shorthorns will be shown. On this farm there is one of the best and most uniform milking Shorthorns herds in the United States and Rock county has long been considered first in this breed of cattle.

To show what can be done with a small herd the schedule includes the farm of George Drafahl, owning Holsteins. This small herd has been highly developed for good production and for several months lead the Footville-Evansville cow testing association. A short stop will be made at the Goldsmith farm to show the results of spraying orchard trees.

One of the best Chester-White swine herds in southern Wisconsin will be seen on the farms of Butts and Babcock. There is exceptional quality stock on these two farms which will be combined for a demonstration on this breed of swine.

Dinner in Evansville.

The Milbrandt herd of Holsteins, considered one of the best in the county, will be shown near Evansville. Sheep from three or more farms will be shown at the farm of W. G. Miles.

One of the climax sights of the trip will be the Robison herd of Herefords. These cattle are worth seeing, having been skillfully developed through long years of selective breeding and care. A Jersey demonstration is being considered demonstration is being considered stration on the road to Fulton village. The last farm to be visited will be the Rock county farm, where it is expected the tour will be ended by 4:30 p. m.

Short talks will be given by the farm authorities on the practical points of the demonstration. Stops are limited to half an hour at the farms having noted livestock.

All farmers and city residents interested in agriculture, are urged to go on the tour, which is to be made an annual affair. The schedule follows good hard gravel roads to eliminate dust and the last lap on the Edgerton concrete highway. The time schedule is being arranged so farmers can leave by five o'clock. Those having picnic dinners will eat at the Evansville tourist camp which has complete equipment and others will be served by a women's organization in Evansville.

The tour committee is composed of Henry Wieland, County Agent R. T. Glassco and Lewis C. French.

Good Fruit Results from Tree Spraying

Remarkable results have been obtained from the spraying of orchard trees in Rock county. In fact one farmer had a kick to make about spraying. He had so much fruit on his apple trees he had to spend a day propping up the branches to prevent them from breaking.

An interesting result was noticed on one farm in cherries. There happened to be one tree some distance from the main orchard. Previous to spraying, the owner had trouble in getting any fruit. This year, after spraying, the trees were loaded and in picking not a wormy cherry was found, whereas the fruit on the unsprayed trees was not only wormy but stunted.

Farmers in the spray rings are now convinced that spraying pays for the results are evident. It is hoped to double the number of spray rings in Rock county again next year.

"Sprayed fruit is worth easily 50 cents more per bushel to the housewife," declares County Agent R. T. Glassco.

An association is to be promoted to market the fruit from the Rock county orchards this fall.

Poultry Breeders to Meet July 23

Oshkosh— The annual summer meeting of the Wisconsin State Poultry Breeders' association will be held here July 23 and 24. Several hundred poultry enthusiasts from all parts of the state are expected to visit this city for the two-day meet.

Lectures on popular and timely poultry subjects by experts will feature the session. Plans for an automobile excursion and a huge picnic are also under way.

The main order of business is the installation of newly elected officers. The officers to be installed are: president, W. H. Eldridge, Barred Rock breeder of Sheboygan county; first vice president, Claude A. Brown, a Rose Comb Rhode Island Red breeder from Walworth county; second vice president, Ray J. Porter, a Silver Wyandotte breeder of Waukesha county; secretary-treasurer, William A. Halbach, White Plymouth Rock breeder of Racine county.

U. S. CHECK SHOWS SHORT WHEAT CROP

Smaller Production of Wheat Reported in Most Nations.

Washington, D. C.—Smaller production of wheat in Europe is indicated in cablegrams received by the United States Department of Agriculture from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. This is due to reduced acreage and generally unfavorable weather conditions during the early summer.

Acreage for countries for which comparable figures are available is estimated at 45,027,000 acres, compared with 46,571,000 acres in 1921. The countries covered are Belgium-Bulgaria, Spain, Finland, France, Scotland, Italy, Latvia, Luxemburg, Poland, Rumania, and Czechoslavakia. Acreage in British India shows an increase of 3,076,000 acres over last year and an increased production of 120,288,000 bushels. Estimates of acreage in Germany, Austria, England, and Ireland are not available.

The wheat crop in the United Kingdom has been especially benefited by favorable weather and growth has been very rapid. If present conditions continue the crop will soon be well up to average.

Plow up Crops

Reports from the Netherlands are generally unfavorable. Much of the crop has been plowed up. In some parts of the country less than one-half the crop remains.

Total acreage of wheat in France is estimated at 12,681,000 acres, compared with 13,165,000 acres in 1921, and with 10,549,000 acres, the five-year average 1909-13.

Acreage in Spain is given as 9,922,000 acres, compared with 10,229,000 acres in 1921, and with a five-year average of 19,547,000 acres, compared with 11,779,000 acres for 1921, and with a five-year average of 11,746,000 acres.

Crop conditions in Rumania are generally favorable. Acreage is given as 4,972,000 acres compared with 5,212,000 in 1921.

Winter sowings in the four Baltic states have come through the winter in good condition and the outlook is generally favorable.

Shortage in Russia

Wheat in Russia is particularly poor due to shortage of seed and late plantings. Crops throughout Azerbaijan have been severely damaged by locusts.

Harvesting of the wheat crop in Egypt during May progressed satisfactorily. The yield is slightly below average.

Crop conditions in Algeria and Tunis are unfavorable. Some damage to crops in Algeria from severe hailstorms is reported.

Crop reports from the Union of South Africa indicate production about the same as that of last year.

Production in New Zealand is estimated at 10,500,000 bushels, compared with 6,872,000 bushels for 1921, and with 7,885,000 bushels, the average for the five years 1909-10 to 1912-13.

The Australian wheat crop previously estimated at 136,168,000 bushels has been reduced to 132,228,000 bushels, which is 91.9 per cent of the final estimate of 143,965,000 bushels in 1920-21.

Production of corn in the Southern Hemisphere for Argentina, Chile, Southern Rhodesia, and the Union of South Africa is given as 201,940,000 bushels, which is 70.6 per cent of production of 285,874,000 bushels in 1920-21, or 92.5 per cent of the average production of 218,229,000 bushels for the five years 1915-16 to 1919-20.

It is expected that over 40 breeders of Brown Swiss cattle, from Shawano, Langlade, Marathon, Clark, Lincoln and Wood counties will make the auto tour. The excursion will start at Marshfield from there to Stevens Point, down highway number ten to Madison, and from there to their objective, the Inman farm near Beloit.

They will stop at farms of prominent breeders of Brown Swiss cattle on route making farms in the Green Lake—Fond du Lac district, the Hibbard farm south of Madison, the Voegeli farm near Monticello, and several farms near Monroe. It is expected that the "going" trip will consume the entire day of the 16th. The 17th is to be spent at the Inman farm where a picnic and program will be held. Among the speakers will be B. H. Hibbard, Agricultural Economist at the University of Wisconsin, and R. S. Hulce, Animal Husbandman at the same institution. On the 18th the breeders will scatter and small groups will visit other farms on their way home.

Wisconsin ranks first in the breeding of Brown Swiss cattle, and the touring breeders represent one of the leading sections of the state in the promotion of the breed.

DOES LAUNDRY WORK AND HOUSEWORK TOO

Surprised to Find Herself Feeling So Well

Taunton, Mass.—"I used to have pains in my back and legs so badly, with other troubles that women sometimes have, that my doctor ordered me to stay in bed a week in every month. It didn't do me much good, so one day after talking with a friend who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about the same troubles I had, I thought I would try it also. I find that I can work in the laundry all through the time and do my housework, too. Last month I was so surprised at myself to be up and around and feeling so good while before I used to feel completely lifeless. I have told some of the girls who work with me and have such troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I tell them how it has helped me. You can use my testimonial for the good of others."—Mrs. BLANCHE SILVIA, 59 Grant St., Taunton, Mass.

It's the same story—one friend telling another of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

RADIO

The subject of Radio is discussed probably more widely than any other at the present time. Everywhere it is the chief topic of conversation. Families stay at home at night to be entertained through the power of their receiving outfits.

The biggest handicap to Radio is the cost of instruments and equipment. The majority of people do not feel able to expend large sums on expensive outfits.

It is not necessary to expend large sums in order to take part in the instructive enjoyment of Radio. "The How and Why of Radio Broadcasting" by Arthur H. Lynch tells how to make and operate your own Long Distance Broadcast Receiver for approximately $10.00. The book is made up of a concise text on Radio development and has four working charts which clearly show even those totally unfamiliar with Radio how they can build a set for approximately $10.00.

"Amateur Radio" by Maurice J. Grainger is a complete book of instructions on operation of receiving outfits and contains charts on hook-ups, wiring, transmission principles, etc. The book also contains a Radio Glossary, and complete information on U. S. Radio Laws and Regulations.

Everyone interested in Radio will find these books of great advantage regardless of the progress they have already made.

The Gazette has secured the principal, right to the distribution of both of the books and because of the quantity of purchase is able to offer them to readers for a very nominal sum.

"The How and Why of Radio Broadcasting" can be secured free of charge with one new six-months signed order for the Gazette or may be purchased at the Gazette office or through Gazette agents upon payment of $1.00 cash accompanied by the attached coupon.

"Amateur Radio" may be obtained without cost with one new three-months signed order to the Gazette or may be purchased outright upon payment of 50c accompanied by the attached coupon.

Special offer of $5.00 award for first workable set made from charts and instructions in "The How and Why of Radio Broadcasting."

O'LEARY, HIKER, SAYS HE'LL LIVE TO BE 110 YEARS

By FRANK SINCLAIR

"I'm going to live to be 110."

It is Dan O'Leary, 80-year old champion pedestrian, talking. Dan was in Janesville Wednesday on his annual visit to the Gazette office.

"Yes sir," he said, "I am going to be a great-great-grandfather before I die. I am a great grandfather now and by the way things naturally go I shall reach my ambition."

Dan is laying plans to quit the walking game. He made his first public announcement of this fact in Janesville.

"I will wind up my walking in 1925," he said. "I will be 84 years old then and have my full growth. I will walk 100 miles on my birthday, June 29, that year. I will walk from one end of the Panama Canal to the other and back again, 190 miles, within 24 consecutive hours. I will be accompanied by James McAndrews, Chicago, and Martin Larson, the man who makes my shoes."

O'Leary came here from Kenosha. He is on his way to Madison where he will pay a visit to Governor Blaine to add another signature to his list. He has the John Hancock's of 15 state executives now and will continue until he has all 48. In addition he is picking up the signatures of the mayors of the largest cities in the country.

"I have a date to keep in 1942," he said. "I am going to play golf with President Harding on my birthday that year. I will then be 100 years old. Mr. Harding will be 78 then."

O'Leary is as springy as ever. He keeps regular hours, eats little meat and lives mostly on a vegetarian diet with plenty of brand bread, cereals and a half pound of butter daily. He has not had a sick day since 1867.

If a person keeps as active as I do," he related, "they should not be ill. Their digestive organs will work naturally and freely. Walking is the best exercise there is."

Dan makes his living putting on exhibition walks. He did a mile last week in a little more than nine minutes. If you think that isn't hiking, try it.

GOLFERS PREPARE IN NATIONAL OPEN

Chicago.—With a course record of 66, set in practice by Leo Diegel of New Orleans, to shoot at, contestants for the National open golf championship began to whirl around the Skokie course Thursday, preparing for the first section of three elimination rounds that starts on Monday. The weather thus far has been ideal; warm enough to limber the muscles and yet not so hot that it enervates the player on the strenuous round of 6,548 yards.

WOMEN DON'T EVEN BLUSH WHEN THEY BUY CIGARETTES NOW

That many Janesville women are habitual smokers is evidenced by statements made by local cigar dealers. While most of the stores report only a few sales of cigarets to women one east side establishment has more than 50 women customers a week.

"A few years ago, women smokers when buying cigarets would come in shamefaced and say they were buying them for their husbands or brothers, but that is now a thing of the past", said a cigar dealer. "Now they breeze in and buy them just the same as men."

Most of the women smokers buy the same brands as the men do, but a good share buy scented Turkish cigarets such as Salomes and Miles. And they are not all young but over half are older women.

"I'd simply die if I couldn't smoke before going to bed." a dealer quoted a woman over 65 years of age Wednesday.

The widely advertised brands of cigarets still holds the lead in the number of sales. Camels and Lucky Strikes are easily the most popular with Chesterfields, Omars, Fatimas, One-Eleven's and Melachrino's.

FINDS PICTURE OF HORSES, OLD MASTER, WORTH THOUSANDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York.—Christopher J. Fitzgerald has loved horses all his life and he has spent most of his life looking at them, either as a follower of racing or as an official of the jockey club. His affection even goes so far that he wants pictures of horses around him.

Recently he saw in an auction room a painted study of several horses and bid $450 to get it. He took the painting home, had it cleaned and discovered he had purchased a work of Isaac Van Ostade, a Dutch master of the 17th century.

An offer of $25,000 has been made for the painting, but Mr. Fitzgerald says it is not for sale.

Withdrawals are reported for home building and investments in higher interest-paying securities, while increased deposits are reported from sections, reflecting general improvement in employment conditions.

Grand Circuit Winner Will Pace in Janesville Stakes

HORSES ARRIVING HERE CONSTANTLY TO END TRAINING

Stepping out of a pack of eight starters, Arrow Head, b. g., by Belwin, was driven by Alonzo McDonald Wednesday to a flashy win in the 2:16 pace at the grand circuit in Cleveland. The time was 2:08¼.

Arrow Head will start in the 2:17 pace, $1,000 stake, in the Janesville fair in August, it was announced Thursday by C. S. Putnam, director of speed.

Owned at Rockford.

The horse is one of three head of the Buckby stable, owned by the late Hiram Buckby of Rockford, which are now at Cleveland and will arrive here the latter part of this month.

Artic Frost of Monroe will reach here Thursday night with five head to start training for the Wisconsin Grand circuit.

With the horses now here and others that will arrive before July 10, there will be 35 in the stalls. From then on, many more will start coming as the racing season for this part of the country draws closer.

Another Circuit Horse.

Lew Randall of Chicago and George Vogel of Solon Mills called Mr. Putnam on the phone Wednesday to notify him they are sending two horses. Three head from the Dean farm, Palatine, Ill., and trained by Fred Sullivan are due to arrive, they said. Mr. Randall is owner of Sir Roache which is going to the grand circuit this year.

Sullivan is training Peter Voly, a filly owned by Howard Newell of Burlington that is showing a lot of class. He also has a trotter of C. A. Goodrow, Woodstock, that is very trappy and fast going.

Denver Horses Here.

The Russell stable of Denver, Col. has arrived in charge of Trainer Leonard. Mr. Russell is a wealthy retired railroad contractor. Leonard has fitted several horses for the grand circuit. His horses are staked here and will remain until the start of the Wisconsin season.

Frank Ayres of Burlington will arrive the latter part of the week with four head. He trained and raced horses over the Janesville track 40 years ago in the days of the late H. D. McKinney of this city.

The trainers at the fair grounds stables held a matinee July 4. There were some 10 to 12 horses on the track. Several fast brushes were staged and some went around the mile.

The new drainage system at the local park will be completed this week. It is three quarters finished now.

COULDN'T WALK WHEN MERE BOY; NOW SPORT STAR

Columbia, Mo.—Although he was physically handicapped in boyhood—it was said he would not be able to walk again—Brutus K. Hamilton has finished one of the greatest versatile college athletic careers by graduating from the University of Missouri this year.

He was cured of his physical handicap, hip disease, and attained a high place in high school athletics. While attending Missouri university he always finished high in pole vaulting, broad and high jumping, shot putting, discus and javelin throwing, sprinting and hurdling, and carried away many victories for the university. Besides, he was captain of the varsity football eleven last year. He also participated in the Olympic games at Antwerp in 1920.

Not only did he excel in athletics, but he graduated with next to the highest honors in his class in school work.

"BRYN" GRIFFITHS, "Roundy" Coughlin, Madison scribes and the scorer of the Stoughton baseball team have been having a three-cornered controversy. It hasn't amounted to much until "Bryn" steps in and takes a crack at "Rusty" Lathrop.

IN HIS latest effusion, Griffiths thinks because "Smiling Bill" has been reached for 10 hits in one game and 9 in another, he must be slipping. The scores of those games were defeats of 5-0 and 3-2, the latter in 10 innings after the game had gone 0-0 to the ninth. And just bare in mind that "Billiam" pitched a one hit game the week before.

DOESN'T look much like slipping in that kind of baseball! Rather knowing some of the conditions under which Lathrop labors, it is a fairer thing to state that he is hurling exceptionally good baseball.

JUST for a matter of comparison, compare the big league games of Independence day. There were double headers galore from which to get a good chance to long things over.

IN ALL the battles, there were 15 teams that had 10 or more hits. The best pitching was a two-hit game for Aldridge of the Cubs. The next best was 5 and 6 hits in the Washington-Boston go. Seems to speak well for Lathrop.
